BOXWOOD—Weller's Hardy Northern Type

BUXUS SEMPERVIRENS WELLERI

Hardiest Boxwood on the market.

During the last twenty-three years we have developed a Boxwood, originally out of the Sempervirens type, which has proved hardy, not only in this part of the country, but also in sections where otherwise no Boxwood could be considered. It stood the winter of seven years ago, when the thermometer dropped to 28 below, while in all other sections of the country Boxwood was killed down to the ground. It was then that nurserymen started to recognize our Boxwood. Since then it has been planted in every part of the country with good success and its popularity as a permanent plant for hedging, window boxes and ornamental planting is assured.
